DRY GOODS NOTES

dry goods notes.....nature's gate shampoo and conditioner-in bulk-are finally back in stock, new lables and all. only took eight months. we have kombucha in the cooler, made in the portland area. we'll get this until oak barrel is up and running again. some newer/soon to arrive items: og chia seed, gluten free and very tasty hemp burgers, natural value green olives, teething tabs (hylands were recalled and then discontinued, don't know why), sweet creek hot and green enchilada sauces. og macadamia nuts will be back next week and....drum roll please, they will not be from africa they are from hawaii. hemp seed will be back next week too, i was told to get them and i dropped the ball, sorry. due to a mis-order we have hi-gluten flour so get it while you can. if you'd like to see it available just let me know. for those of you who've missed sencha tea, the bulk price spiked and stayed up there, found some packaged and on sale for less than bulk price so yep, we have it. enjoy. the last few weeks have been a bit crazier than usual for this time of year and i keep forgetting to look at the 'request list'. i'll look this week and see what we can get. almost pea planting time! sue (688-6679) job opening: we need someone to take care of the kitchen laundry as elise is taking on a different job. give her a call--541-349-1117--for job details.

WHO'S WHO AT GROWERS MARKET?

Who's Who at Growers? Amy Graves is who! She usually shops by herself for her family. Her boys are teenagers and she has an 11 year old daughter. About once or twice a month you can find her at Growers on Friday morning. She's probably checking out the great local and cheap produce, or treating herself to chocolate turtles in bulk or Julie's Ice Cream Bars with wheat! Her first time to Growers was in 95, her son was three. It was her first day in Eugene and her sister-in-law brought her in after a walk in the park and lunch. Rachel checked her out. Why Growers after all these years? It's good organic, cheap healthy wholefood and local community. Passions? You bet! She's an artist to the max, not yet showing it off, but studying at UO, ceramics and painting. Thanks for the interview. Emily Ellowen Nance

HERB CLASSES

Sunnyside Herbs will be starting its classes for 2011 on Sunday, Feb. 20th. The first level is 5 weeks long and will cover basics of fundamental herbal skills such as: cultivation and ethical harvesting of herbs, making medicinal preparations, basics of botany, plant identification, creating an herbal library and organoleptic skills.

Each class will include time outside in the garden as well as a Teatime where we taste a plant in tea form and learn about it in more depth. There are often volunteer medicinal plant starts that find new homes with students.

Classes are held in my home and garden in Corvallis.

There are brochures with more info on the bulletin board at growers. You can contact me at jacimck@hotmail.com or 541-758-9156. Jaci (McKamey) Guerena
