WHO'S WHO AT GROWERS?

Meet Misha who has been with Growers since the 80's. He walked over one day, after moving here from Riverside, CA. He had been in a food co-op there, and wanted to find one in Eugene. Growers is nice, for its cooperative spirit of community shopping. When asked why he moved to Eugene, he said someone recommended it while he was at the movies in his 20s.

He shops and lives by himself, but he has a housemate who says she's living with the biggest cockroach in town. His favorite thing about the food at Growers is that it is always vegetarian. There isn't any meat. Not that that's bad. He emphasizes that he walked here, and didn't take the bus, and the longest he's walked on an errand in one day is a couple miles to a Rec Center on River Rd. His favorite thing to get at Growers, is "food!" Once when he was in Berkeley, there was a community restaurant called One World.

It served vegan food like lentil soup. He wanted to go there and find out if people could be Breath-itarian, but they didn't serve any of that. Recently he has been eating a large amount of Broccoli for its calcium content. He usually shops on Fridays. Thanks Misha!
